GRUNDZÜGE DER MIKROÖKONOMISCHER THEORIE

(Foundations of the Micro-Economic Theory)

Berlin — Heidelberg — New York, Springer Verlag, 1971

The work proposes to introduce readers into the field of micro-economic theory, being the result of the lectures held by the author at Münster University.

The whole material refers to the organization of various types of enterprises and, especially, to problems linked with goods sales, in the conditions of free competition, both in case of the monopolist market and in the oligopolic case. The problem of the formation of prices in the above-mentioned conditions is discussed, taking into consideration besides competition also the case of co-operation among the offer makers.

The way of presentation of the material is accessible, special knowledge of mathematics being not necessary. The author often applies to diagrams and examples. The whole work must be regarded critically, from the positions of the Marxist-Leninist political economy.
